

I am concerned that there has been so little publicity regarding this important issue. It appears to me that any relaxing of present limits to ownership of broadcasting companies will continue the narrowing of information and entertainment sources to each citizen. With all media owned by a few enormous companies, individual choice and local variety will be erased. Regulations are even more important today than they were when created; they need to be fine-tuned and sometimes expanded, rather than dumped!